I just wanted to let you know that I love your product and I read it regularly. It has helped us make sure we are seeing as much as possible around the Nation. I also was born and raised in Seattle and love to keep on top of what's going on in the area, as some day I hope to move back.

Please let me know if you ever need something from the WRTAC.

Thank you!

Subject: InFOCUS 'Spring Cleaning'

If you received this message, then I have your address label in the InFOCUS (Information From Online Communities and Unclassified Sources) distribution list. InFOCUS is published by the Washington State Fusion Center and is our situational awareness service that we provide to you on a daily basis exposing you to headlines that spark our interest or have an impact within our community, our region and our state. We highlight the headline and we 'gist' the stories for you. Should you desire to read the entire story, you are just a click away from the reporting source. Typically what took a dedicated open-source reader on average of 1-2 hours a day, InFOCUS can deliver to you situational awareness of major headlines requiring no more than 15 minutes total reading time—15 minutes to maintain daily situational awareness of events that are happening across the world, our nation and within our region.

However, through the year, I receive many 'no delivery' messages primarily because the receiving agency doesn't allow InFOCUS to access your email account (yes, there are on average 80 hypertext links per publication and many firewalls frown on these types of emails). So, if you haven't been receiving your daily InFOCUS perhaps your firewall is blocking delivery thus requiring you to contact your agency sys-admin technician to allow my SPD email with many hypertext links to enter your inbox.

Otherwise, if you no longer require InFOCUS delivery, please respond to this email by simply replacing my subject line: InFOCUS 'Spring Cleaning' with 'REMOVE FROM INFOCUS'. I understand everyone is busy and agendas frequently change thereby necessitating a different avenue for situational awareness on open source headlines/stories. If you have others wishing to subscribe, then please have them send me an email with subject line: 'SUBSCRIBE INFOCUS' and I will do the rest.

Thank you for your interest in InFOCUS and I look forward to another exciting publication year!
